The RoZetta Institute is an independent research organisation that seed-funds transformative research centres to deliver economic impact and improve lives.

Harnessing Australian research excellence to create positive impact

Working together with our partners, we identify and research major opportunities for economic reform and market innovation. Our unique position and network allow us to act as a force-multiplier to take advantage of these big opportunities, bringing parties together to fund and collaborate on major, national research and innovation initiatives.

Vision

We collaborate to implement innovation centres that drive transformative impact to people's lives and economic activity, in subject areas of national strategic importance.

Mission

Proactively leverage funding, experience, and network into new, high-impact, strategic Research and Development (R&D) partnerships for Australia.

Conduct research to identify opportunities where new approaches and technology can transform aspects of an economic sector and improve people's lives

Form consortia (companies, universities, not-for-profits, PhD students, government) with the capacity to research, develop and deploy the required technologies to achieve a transformation in the sector

Specify commercially driven research programs that develop and support the development and application of transformational technologies

Independent – we select R&D subjects driven by impact potential

How RoZetta works

The innovation model

Our innovation model starts with primary research where our team scans the environment to identify suitable markets for reform. Agreed opportunities are published and we sponsor bid teams to establish new research centres. These centres undertake translational research from which commercial ventures are established, products and services are developed and, in some instances, new companies are “spin up”.

We are independent and driven by impact potential

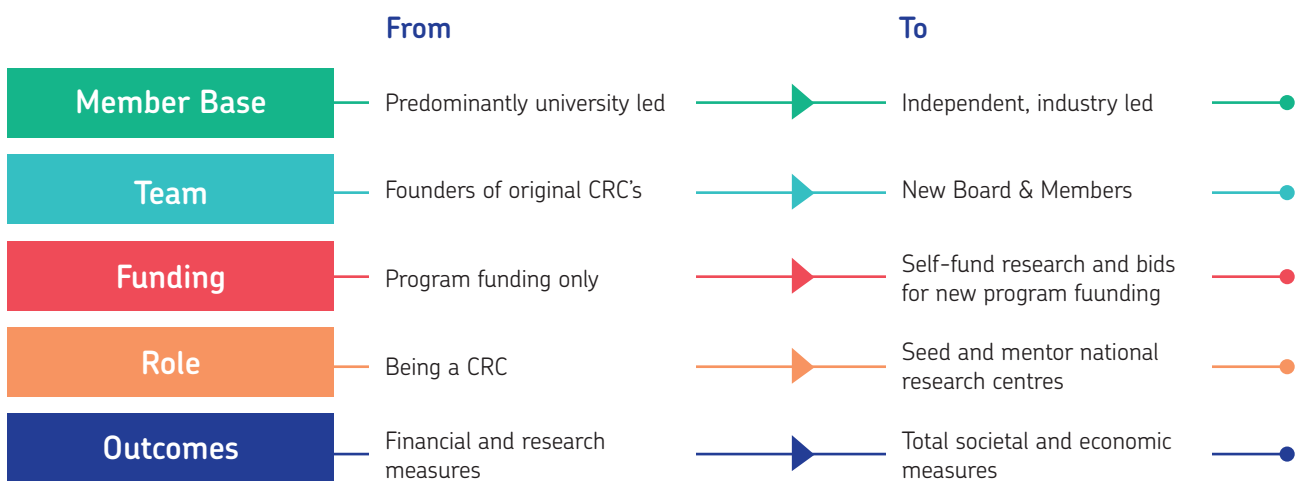

At RoZetta, we use research as the foundation of the innovation process. Our success is attributed to our commercial focus, broad experience, and operational efficiency.

RoZetta's role decreases as Research Centres are established

Investing in the future

Our past projects have earned us $25 million worth of endowment funding for future projects, allowing us to invest in new and emerging technologies.

RoZetta is evolving to ensure we continue to deliver high level research with impact.

Innovating for a better world

RoZetta is positioned at the intersection of industries, universities, government, and future entrepreneurs.

We harness Australia's excellent research resources by orchestrating key players to come together and address industry challenges that can only be solved through a process of collaboration between all players.

A network with a shared goal

We share the goals of universities, industry, and government - which is to enhance Australia's innovation ability, effectively converting research into social and economic benefits. The role of RoZetta Institute is to support the innovation ecosystem to create new initiatives and centres that achieve this goal.

Every research project we undertake lets our partners solve complex problems, deliver insights, make evidence-based decisions, achieve business outcomes (regulatory or commercial) and drive change.

We invite anyone in Australia who shares the same goal to contact us to discuss how we might work together.
